About me

I'm a skilled MERN stack web developer who is eager to learn and explore new technologies. I'm a team player with experience in ReactJs, and NextJs. I'm proud of leading a successful web application project that taught me project management, communication, and technical skills. I'm passionate about creating scalable and maintainable code and believe I could bring value to any team.

Freelancer Experience

2023 - Current

I work with various clients to develop custom software solutions that meet their unique needs. My primary focus is on building scalable and maintainable applications using the latest technologies and frameworks.

2020 - 2022

I worked as a frontend developer, mainly using ReactJS. If a project required it, I utilized NextJS. Additionally, I worked as the backend developer, responsible for creating sustainable and scalable APIs using Express and connecting them to databases such as MongoDB or MySQL
